Privacy Policy for Unboxd

Effective Date: July 18, 2025

Unboxd is a Chrome extension that helps users easily log and watchlist movies on their Letterboxd account. Your privacy is important to us. This Privacy Policy outlines the types of information we collect, how we use it, and how we protect your data.

---

1. Information We Collect

Unboxd stores the following information locally in your browser:

- Your Letterboxd username

- Your Letterboxd CSRF token

- The IDs of movies you've already logged or watchlisted

- A local dataset of popular movies used for filtering and display

We do not collect your password or any personally sensitive information.

---

2. How We Use This Information

This data is used exclusively to:

- Enable logging and watchlisting directly from the extension

- Prevent showing you movies you've already logged or watchlisted

- Maintain your session within the extension (so you don't have to log in repeatedly)

All data is stored locally in your browser and is never transmitted to external servers, including our own.

3. Data Sharing

We do not share, sell, or transmit your data to any third party.
All user data remains on your device.

4. Data Security

We ensure that no unnecessary or sensitive data is collected. However, because the data is stored locally, we recommend you use your browser's built-in privacy features to manage storage if needed.

5. User Control

You can delete all stored data at any time by:

- Removing the extension

- Clearing the extension's local storage through your browser settings

6. Changes to This Policy

This policy may be updated in the future. Any changes will be reflected here with an updated effective date.
